Even though the Garden had a closed sign on the gate, changes were taking place. Sadly, two trees had to be removed. We found that it was the right decision as they were rotted through and could have posed a danger to visitors. Now we have a flowering Stewartia Tree as another focal point in our Garden. Look for other trees to be joining her soon. In addition, our Garden Designer Susan Sipos has already started underplanting with shrubs, perennials and Native Plants all the new open areas created by the loss of our trees.
